

2025 Autumn/Winter

HURUKI

Product by KICCOLY®

I grew up receiving a lot of love from my parents. And I understand that love. Of course, I love them too.

Every day I get to be a parent.

Until the end of our lives, we will continue to think of, worry about, and love our children, no matter how far we are from them.

Although we are their parents, one day we will realize just how short the days we can be parents to our children are.

Today too, you turn around with a carefree smile, open arms, and run towards me.

I will never forget.

Never.

Yesterday when I laughed because I cut your bangs too short.

Today when I scolded you and cried myself.

That night when I laughed at the way you slept.

The beauty of the flowers you picked:)

The me you forgave.

And every day you're with me.

I will never forget.

I'm truly grateful to my children for teaching me that there are beings in this world that are more important than my own life.
